

THE
CHAOS

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased by 1.5 million (1990–2000) and is projected to increase by a further 1.5 million by 2020 (Office for National Statistics 2001). The number of people aged 65 and over is projected to increase from 10.5 million in 2000 to 12.5 million in 2020, with the number of people aged 75 and over increasing from 4.5 million to 6.5 million in the same period.

There is a growing awareness of the need to develop strategies to meet the needs of the ageing population. The Department of Health (2000) has identified the need to develop a 'new paradigm' for the care of the ageing population, one that is based on the principles of 'active ageing' and 'positive ageing'. This paradigm is based on the idea that ageing is a process, not a state, and that the quality of life of older people is determined by a range of factors, including physical health, mental health, social support, and access to services.

The Department of Health (2000) has identified a number of key areas for action in order to develop this new paradigm. These include: (1) improving the physical health of older people; (2) improving the mental health of older people; (3) improving the social support of older people; and (4) improving access to services for older people. This paper will focus on the first of these areas, the physical health of older people.

The physical health of older people is a complex issue, involving a range of factors, including physical health, mental health, social support, and access to services. "As editor of the 1979 CHAOS, I would like to express my sincere gratitude to everyone who helped create this year's book.

I would like to thank the following people very much: Ms. Joan Plunket for her assistance, Mr. Crowe and Mr. Day for their wonderful cooperation, Mr. Wayne Erickson and Ms. Janet Mauck for their photography and valuable time.

Among others deserving thanks are Terri Spencer and Kathy Dunlap for their time in helping me meet deadlines, Ms. Landgrebe and the Rensselaerien staff for their loan of the camera, Paula Oliver for her help and encouragement, and finally, the CHAOS staff for their ceaseless work which made this book possible.

The 1979 CHAOS staff would also like to thank the patrons and advertisers for their generous contributions.

Without the help of all these people, the publication of our book would not have been possible.
